

Small Actions, Big Difference

Dying Matters Photography Project

November 2011- May 2012

Dying Matters is working with photographer Nadia Bettega on our new project. It aims to capture images of the small things that you have done to make a big difference to someone's quality of life at the end of life, whether they are nearing the end of life, caring for someone who is nearing the end of life or are bereaved.

If you've got an example of small things that make, or have made, a big difference and would like to be photographed, then you can take part.
